The Global Support Initiative for Indigenous Peoples and Community-Conserved Territories and Areas (ICCA-GSI)

With the adoption of the CBD 2020 Aichi targets in 2010, attention has been increasingly focused on recognizing and supporting the vital role of indigenous peoples and local communities (IPLCs) in conserving biodiversity outside of the framework of formally-gazetted and managed government protected areas.

In 2014, the Global Support Initiative for Indigenous Peoples and Community Conserved Territories and Areas (GSI) was formed to broaden the diversity and quality of governance types of protected areas (PAs) and conserved areas (CAs) which contribute to the achievement of the CBD Aichi targets. The central objective of the GSI is to improve the recognition, support and overall effectiveness of ICCAs for biodiversity conservation through sustainable livelihoods and self-strengthening of ICCAs.

The GSI is a multi-partnership initiative that is delivered by the UNDP-implemented Global Environment Facility Small Grants Programme (GEF SGP), with $16.3m in funding provided by the Government of Germany, through its Federal Ministry for the Environment, Nature Conservation, and Nuclear Safety (BMU) International Climate Initiative (IKI).

Key partners in the initiative include the Secretariat of the Convention of Biological Diversity (CBD); the Global ICCA Consortium; the Global Programme on Protected Areas of the International Union for the Conservation of Nature (IUCN GPAP); and the United Nations Environment Programme World Conservation Monitoring Centre \(UNEP WCMC\).
